

KAREN ALBER
Chief Information Officer

Karen Alber is chief information officer for MillerCoors. In this role, Karen is responsible for providing executive vision and leadership in the development and implementation of robust information solutions across the company.

Karen joined MillerCoors in February 2011 from HJ Heinz, where she served as senior vice president and global chief information officer. During her tenure, her team led a worldwide business and system transformation change.

Prior to her role at Heinz, Karen held leadership positions at PepsiCo, including vice president of enterprise systems readiness, training and development; and vice president of the company's integration management office. She also held a number of roles with Quaker Oats, including vice president of integrated business solutions, and supply chain director for the Quaker Foods division. Additionally, Karen worked at SAP America as industry segment manager for its food and beverage sector.

Karen is a board member of the Breast Cancer Network of Strength and also serves as an advisory board member for the Consumer Goods Technology Magazine. Additionally, she has had strong involvement with APICS, The Association for Operations Management.

Karen earned a Bachelor of Science in operations management from the University of Iowa and an MBA from Loyola University in Chicago.